avenue 101

fillies by the dozen street fighters for the chosen cheese burger omelettes for the entourage seems as if life is too short to go slow

headwinds coming down broadway gunfights on second avenue cliched responses from the spectators who point with reckless struggle

come on, clyde stitched up in your bentley lotus t-bird rumble can wind winding around the ochre tiled towers of the isolated urban screamers of 1990

duchamp come back truss rods of velvet gliding down the avenue of my crushed emotion
